

BOW KUM MURDER TRIAL ON

SHE WAS MISSION GIRL WHO SET THE TONGS AT WAR.

Selected from Slavery in San Francisco. She was brought to New York by a way that was dark and killed. Supposedly by Clansmen of Her Owner.

Lau Tang and Lau Shong sat for hours yesterday looking at a picture of a woman who held in one upstretched hand a pair of scales and in the other a crystal clear globe. They looked also at the nearly naked youth who stood by the side of the woman with a long, hairy sword in his hands. That sword may have had more significance to the two sleek, carefully groomed Laus than the scales and the globe, for back in the land of the yamens of justice a sword is an ever ready instrument, and in the yamen here known as Part I. of the Criminal Branch, Supreme Court, Lau Tang and Lau Shong were sitting on trial for murder.

It is for the murder of Bow Kum, the Chinese girl who was stabbed to death in a room at 17 Mott street on the night of August 14 that the two Laus have now to answer. Detectives made a dive into the blind alleys of Chinatown's secret jealousies and hates in the days following the finding of Bow Kum's mutilated body, and they picked out of the shuffle the mild mannered Lau Tang and the soft spoken Lau Shong to hold for trial in the American yamen where the pictured justice is.

Now, with the filling of the jury box, which took all of yesterday's time, the even course of Chinese justice in an American court will progress. Sometimes a Chinese trial is a contest in unvarnished, and the side which believes that it has produced the most remarkable departure from the truth is the side expecting a verdict.

More than the issues of the future comfort of the two Laus hangs on the outcome of this trial. Chinatown in New York has a burning issue in the development of the case, and the bigger issue, Chinatown out in San Francisco, centre of all the radiating affairs of the Chinese in this country, also will be profoundly interested. For the four brothers and the On Leongs are arrayed in opposite interests in the present trial, to save or to kill the two Laus both camps in Chinese fraternal society will uncover facts which have been jealously guarded as intimate affairs of Chinamen alone.

One of the things that will be told, variously no doubt and with many side lights dictated by an Oriental imagination, will be the story of how a plump little bit of helpless humanity became a shuttlecock between scheming owners. The shadows that hung about the path of Bow Kum, the murdered girl, will be portrayed to the face of one man to save the lives of two.

As one version of the story will probably go, Lau He Dong, a Four Brothers man of San Francisco, believing that two shaves for his treasury might be made to grow where only one had flourished before, brought from South China Bow Kum, the beautiful girl he brought her, the Pacific Coast port, as all Chinese girls are brought in there, under oath by bell and book that she was his lawful daughter. Then he installed her in a gilded nest on Ross alley, that alley where always at night there is the tinkle of minor strings and the pad-paddling of furtive feet on dark stairways. The treasury of Lau He Dong grew in richness with such a red checked pear as Bow Kum installed in the damask hung gallery. Then the tale has it that Chin Ling, or Lem, an On Leong man, looked upon the bluish of Bow Kum's cheek and found it fair, that he straightway coveted the prize in the Four Brothers nest and laid his plans to capture it. He sought out Miss Cameron, the vigilant missionary of the Presbyterian establishment on the edge of San Francisco's Chinatown which makes a business of rescuing "slave" girls, and he induced her to go and get Bow Kum. This she did in a way that had made her career in Chinatown out there noted. The red checked pear of Lau He Dong lived six months at the missionary home.

Then on the promise made to the missionary woman that he would marry the girl if she were allowed to go, Chin Ling got possession of Bow Kum. Loud was the wail that went from Lau He Dong, who had been powerful before the missionary woman and then had found himself tricked.

But Chin Ling was not the white soul he had represented himself to be before the missionary woman, so the story unfolds. With Bow Kum in his possession here in New York it is alleged that he duplicated the glidednest that had been robbed in San Francisco and set himself to watch his own treasury wax fat. But not for long. Through the Four Brothers came a formal order on the On Leong to appear in Chinatown to answer to the members, that payment of $2,000, the original cost of the girl in China, and an additional recompense of $1,000 for her expenses here in New York should be immediately paid to Lau He Dong.

On the On Leongs and Chin Ling laughed. Four Brothers to scorn. There had been no kidnapping of Lau He Dong, said the girl who left her best nest in Chinatown to go with the missionary woman. She was his own daughter, and Chin Ling had married her entirely independent negotiator. That exchange of pourparlers between himself and the groping of detectives in the dark. The two Laus were so unvarnished as to have the red checked pear with some of the girl's clothing and also a shirt of steel chain links, some daggers and revolvers. Hence their trial for murder.

So all day yesterday they sat before the bar, their eyes on the picture of justice, while their attorney, Terrence O'Rourke, and their assistant, District Attorney Frank Moss, combed over the tale of testimony. Out in the hallway sat Sam Luck, a power among the Four Brothers, who had come all the way from San Francisco to see what he could do to the wheels of safe justice, stood hard over a parcel of favoring witnesses to see that no On Leong man came near to a witness who might be somewhat dreadfully to happen under certain eventualities. The battle of the witnesses and entanglements of interpreters will begin to-day.

MAIL DAYS FOR SAM KELLER.

Manager of E. S. Dean & Co. Bankrupt, owing $5,807.

Samuel L. Keller has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $5,807 and assets consisting of $987 due him for salary as manager of the Money and Stamp Brokerage Company of 150 Nassau street, and money advanced to the company. Col. Edwin T. Tallierro, attorney for Keller, who filed the petition in bankruptcy yesterday, said that it was the same Sam Keller who was a manager of the E. S. Dean Company, a stock and bond brokerage which collapsed in 1907, when victims were said to have lost $5,000,000.

Hudson Tunnel Increasing Traffic.

The Hudson tunnel system carried 653,536 passengers in December, which is an increase over the number carried in August, the first month of operation of the present system, of 52 per cent. An average increase of over 10 per cent. month. This showing is regarded as remarkable in view of the fact that two of the company's important stations, at Thirty-third street and at Chambers street, are not yet finished.

WANT DR. COOK OUSTED.

Trustees of Brooklyn Institute Recommend His Expulsion.

The Council of Associate Members of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences at a meeting held on Monday, at which the Rev. Dr. James M. Ferrar presided, voted to recommend the board of trustees to drop the name of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the discredited explorer, from the list of members. This is the first time in the history of the institute that such action has been taken.

The Cook matter came up when this report was submitted by H. L. Bridgman, president of the department of geography. The Department of Geography reports concerning Frederick A. Cook, a member of its executive committee, that the Explorers Club of New York on December 24, 1909, after more than two months investigation, "rejected the entire claim by Dr. Cook that he ascended Mount McKinley to its summit in 1906," and that the consistency of the University of Copenhagen on December 22, 1909, reported that "the information and observations furnished by Dr. Cook were insufficient to prove that he had reached the pole," both of which alleged achievements had been described and illustrated to the institute by Dr. Cook. The department therefore asks action by the council upon the facts.

Immediately following the adoption of the report the council without any discussion voted unanimously to recommend Dr. Cook's expulsion. Dr. Cook is a member of the executive committee of the department of geography and he lectured under the auspices of the institute at the Academy of Music on December 2.

ATTORNEY SUSPENDED.

Court Makes Some Remarks About the Practice of the Law.

Elias B. Goodman, a young lawyer at 42 Broadway, was suspended from practice by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday for a term of two years on charges which the judges declare show "a persistent course of attempted fraud and chicanery designed to impede and prostrate the course of justice in every step of which the respondent participated in one capacity or another."

The gist of the charges was that to delay proceedings against Goodman's client by a creditor false answers were put in and in a related matter Goodman drew deeds transferring the property of one of his clients' bondmen to persons who forthwith transferred it back, although only the first deeds were recorded; as a result of which and other proceedings, says the Court, the bondmen for Goodman's client were enabled by the respondent's active aid to postpone for more than a year the payment of a just claim to which there never was a shadow of a defense. "The respondent, Goodman, even now," says the Court, "seems to be unaware that his conduct has been of a nature to justify criticism and censure. He seems to be impressed with the idea that as long as an attorney keeps himself within the limits of the law he may safely and justifiably seek to mislead the court and defeat the just claims of an opponent by attempting to uphold what he knows to be false statements and fraudulent acts on the part of his client."

CROSS-EXAMINES HIS WIFE.

Case Where the Witness Was Not Afraid of Hostile Counsel.

Louis H. Levin, a lawyer of 320 Broadway, appeared as defendant and defendant's attorney in the trial before Supreme Court Justice Whitney yesterday of the suit of his wife, Rebecca, for a separation. The plaintiff gave the defendant-counsel a lively time when he cross-examined her, and once she cried: "Don't yell at me here as you did at home."

Levin is 4 feet 10 inches and his wife is 5 feet 5 inches. Mrs. Levin testified that her husband told her that eight years and a half was long enough for any man to live with a woman and that he packed up all the furniture, including her wedding presents, and abandoned her on January 28 last. On the cross-examination Levin said:

"You have testified that you begged your husband to return and live with you. Why did you do that if your husband was cruel to you and you were afraid of him?" "Because my children cried so when we were away from home," replied Mrs. Levin.

In his defence Levin said that his wife's family consisted of her parents, nine brothers and four sisters, and that they were all constant visitors at his home, took over the supervision of his home, criticized the way he was conducting his business and prejudiced his wife against him. The case was not concluded.

RETRY HOURS OF SERVICE CASE.

U. S. Court of Appeals Reverses District Court in Suit Against Santa Fe.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day reversed the judgment of the district court in the case of the United States against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, charged with violation of the hours of service act.

The cause is remanded with instructions to grant a new trial. The decision was handed down by Judge Grosscup, Baker and Seaman. The suit against the railroad was started by District Attorney Edwin W. Sims under the hours of service law, which makes it unlawful for railroads to permit employees to remain on duty for more than sixteen consecutive hours. A judgment of $100 was entered against the railroad.

The case against the railroad charged that Fred Hillhouse, an employee of the company's telegraphers, was compelled to remain on duty for a longer period than nine hours.

The court held that Hillhouse had not been on duty more than nine hours, hours of service being divided into two periods with an intermission of three hours. The government's contention that Hillhouse was on duty for a longer period than nine hours was overruled.

STILL $42,000 SHORT.

Mrs. Sage Isn't Fixing a Definite Time for Raising It.

The American Bible Society announced yesterday the receipt of $47,387.30 of the $90,000 needed to secure Mrs. Russell Sage's half million. At the meeting held yesterday afternoon about a dozen men were present. No large gifts were reported yesterday. Mrs. Sage, through her counsel, told the society to go ahead and complete the sum. She gave no specific date, but said a brief time.

On Christmas Day 250,000 letters were mailed asking for gifts of $1 each. So many were the returns, often as high as $50 a day, that the treasurer's staff had to work at night. In some instances as low as 10 cents was received, but in the greater number of cases, if there was a response at all, it was for $5, $10 or even $100.

The society will continue its appeals and feels sure of being able to raise the $42,000 still needed. The $1,000,000 is to become a permanent endowment of the society.

UNCLE SAM'S BUSY RAILROAD.

The Fifty Miles in Panama Has All the Work It Can Handle.

Some idea of the vast amount of work that is being done nowadays by Uncle Sam's little fifty mile railroad on the Isthmus was given yesterday by F. W. Fitch, chief dispatcher of the Panama Railroad, who left yesterday on the Panama for Colon.

"The greatest problem we have is the handling of dirt or 'spoil' trains," said Mr. Fitch. "On the average we have 450 trainloads of dirt to move in a day. The usual length of haul is fifteen to twenty miles. The Culabra cut furnishes the greater part of it, and this goes to Balboa, formerly La Boca, where they are making a breakwater about five miles out at sea. The Bas Obispo rock goes to the Gatun dam."

"Of commercial freight we handle an average of 8,000 tons a day southbound and 1,000 northbound. The passenger service is immense. There are six passenger trains each way a day, and the usual train carries three first and five second class coaches crowded. The fare being half the price of first class. The Panamanians are great travelers, and the Jamaican negroes spend Sundays and holidays travelling back and forth. Last Fourth of July we ran a regular street car service back and forth across the Isthmus, everything being free. We handled that day 45,000 passengers, and there was not an accident of any kind. The number of tourists down there is tremendous, especially Europeans, who seem to take more interest in the canal than do the Americans. The English and Germans are the most numerous. It is expected that the new road will be finished by the latter part of July. This has had to be built literally through a jungle."

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so that to my friends, and even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the various Hospitals, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and on, and there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, 1909."

CURED BOILS

With Cuticura when Everything Else had Failed.

"I am very grateful for Cuticura as my daughter had been suffering for eleven months with awful great boils on her body. We tried everything which one could mention but nothing was any good. The boils made her very weak and ill and she had to leave her place. After using one tablet of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment, two bottles of Cuticura Pills and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent she got quite well and has not had the boils since. I should have written to you before but have been waiting to see if she had any sign of any coming back. My daughter is eighteen years old. Mrs. Ellen Heather, Hillside Rd., Ash Common, near Aldershot, Hants, England, June 29, 1909."

On Watch for Any Milk Crime.

District Attorney Whitman announced last night that a representative of his office would be present at the hearings in the Attorney-General's office before Referee Brown in the Attorney-General's investigation of the milk trust. Assistant District Attorney DeFord will represent the prosecutor's office at the hearings with a view to seeing if there is any evidence of crime brought out.
